

Slough set for Starter Homes development

Published by Rebecca McAdam for 24dash.com in Housing and also in Development

Tuesday 7th June 2016 - 11:28am

Share this story

A former office building in Slough has been transformed into 90 starter homes.

Galliard Homes has unveiled Skyline, a collection of 90 studio, one and two-bedroom apartments, positioned over eleven floors in a former Fujitsu office building.

All apartments offer video entryphone systems, with passenger lifts and a secure cycling store.

Residents of Skyline will be within walking distance of the Observatory Shopping Centre, a retail hub with shops, cinema and gymnasium.

More than £450m has been invested in Slough in recent years to regenerate the station, roads, pavements and buildings

Situated on the M4 corridor or 'silicon alley' as it's known, it has long been a hub for the UK bases of major global high-tech companies, currently housing more than 4,600 businesses, including Amazon, Nintendo and Unilever.

First-time buyers can benefit from Galliard's Brexit 3-day sales release clause – a money-back guarantee so you can exit if we Brexit.

David Galman, sales director for Galliard Homes said: "Skyline is an exciting new starter home scheme in Slough, perfect for first-time buyers.

"In the midst of a huge £1bn investment programme and the incoming Crossrail route, Skyline offers a great investment, in an area that is transforming. The interiors offered at the building evoke 'industrial-chic' with clever use of space and finishes including bespoke chandeliers crafted from metals and blown glass."