The latest pint-size apartments explore the secrets of space – and have knockout London views, says David Spittles

When you, or even the person you're planning to make, tell you that the maximum floor-to-ceiling height is 2.7m, you know you're in for a bit of a challenge. However, it's not the height that's the problem here. It's the space that's the issue. The latest pint-size apartments explore the secrets of space – and have knockout London views, says David Spittles

When a developer is given a plot in a prime location, they will often build a tall building. However, in some cases, the height is restricted. This is often the case in conservation areas, where the height is limited to a certain number of storeys. In this case, the developer has to make the most of the space they have.
