

Grab your spot by the river

FORGET Clerkenwell Design Week, if you want to get a taste of the latest London design trends, take a peek at the new show homes in the capital.

To coincide with the launch of the final phase of apartments at Wapping Riverside, Galliard Homes has unveiled a new show apartment, with the help of A-list design house Argent Design. As befits the waterside location, the two-bed show apartment has a glamorous aqua-inspired look, using a palette of watery hues, cloud shades and reflective surfaces to echo the ebb and flow of the Thames outside and the skyline above.

But to bring the design up to date – and pay homage to Wapping’s industrial heritage – accents of bronze, bespoke leather-studded panels and petrol blue details will punctuate the scheme. Wapping Riverside sees the transformation of a Grade II-listed Victorian tea and coffee warehouse built in the 1830s – it’s this five-storey brick and glass building that will house the last remaining collection of two and three-bedroom apartments, with river views to complete the cool-urban vibe (from £1.3million, galliardhomes.com)
